

Be sure to visit our website for the latest information, helpful links, OIA office contacts and more.
<http://vawww.vhaco.va.gov/oia/>

VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION

Office of Informatics and Analytics

Introducing our Newest Communications Tool

Welcome To OIA's Blog—OIA Connection

OIA Staff,

We have a new tool for sharing information with our internal team, as well as our partners in VA.

OIA Connection Blog Home

The goal of the blog is to keep OIA employees and our VA partners informed while offering an opportunity for dialog. With the OIA Connection we now have a platform to ask questions on a variety of topics and discussion points available 24/7. Your participation in the form of comments, as well as suggestions for topics, is encouraged.

Commenting is easy.

Posted in education, From Marcia Insley, iEHR | Tagged iEHR | Leave a comment

At the bottom of every post you will find a link to "Leave a comment."

Comment on iEHR — Marcia Insley

Select it and you will open a form in which you will type your name, your VA email address and your comments. You'll notice that when you click the button, your comment won't show up immediately.

Post Comment

VA blogs are moderated.

This does not mean that we censor or edit comments. This is an open dialog. We only ask that you follow our blog policy. Our review is to ensure that we protect privacy and the appropriate use of this tool. Click the Policy link at the top of the blog to view the entire set of guidelines.

While many of you may be familiar with blogging, you may even have your own personal blog, some will still be learning about this web log (blog) platform. To our new initiates, we offer a suggestion to get the most out of the blog.

Subscribe to the blog's RSS Feed. Click the Entries RSS link in the lower right column of the blog home page.

- Entries RSS
- Comments RSS
- Syndicate this site using RSS 2.0

Add the feed to your browser, or even to your RSS Feeds option in Outlook.

We will also indicate when we have new posts on the OIA home page, in the blue blog feature box.

Spread the Word – Participate – Suggest and Share!

Let us know if we can answer any questions.

Please share your ideas
Feedback Page

Veterans Health Administration
Office of Informatics and Analytics

VA
HEALTH
CARE | Defining
EXCELLENCE
in the 21st Century